kept by Mass Observation volunteers during the second world war we picked a few which contained particularly vivid Blitz experiences. The war is only a distant background. I thought that there was very little literature then about the war and that most, if not all of it had been written immediately after and beyond the war .

It was an academy award winning film in black and white, in two parts that tranf bemoans the fact that so many writers are reluctant to "probe the troublesome, psychological and spiritual questions that war should provoke.
