Promo Any activity that an act does to promote their music without being paid is a promo activity. There is no one timetable or path to success.

If you're hitting the road for a month or more, preparation is key—in making money.

Branch out a bit, consider gigs at schools, fairs, festivals and perhaps parks in the summertime. This includes radio and TV appearances and press interviews. The best way to show how the music industry works is by showing them logically in a chart with the interactions of key industry players:.

Remember that the record labels don't know what they are looking for, but with running your own could establish a constant flow of revenue.
