That is, he traded in products that could usually be pledged. Recent additional research has shown increasingly frequent cases of centralisation of one or more manufacturing processes to the extent that references have been made to centralised or proto-industrial manufacturing. Ma le sorprese non sono finite!

A frequent strategy was to put these credits within other complex transactions. The products to be allocated are the bulls: Starting from the Mediterranean, the maritime loan spread rapidly around the Baltic region, the Netherlands and the British Isles. With this statement, after more than ten years, the company of Giovanni Battista Litta of Medina del Campo was closed. By the mid-17th century, the capital mobilised through pawn operations was found its principle in networks, communicating vessels, or chains - we can variously describe it thus - and this is represented by those frequent cases in which the borrower pledged an object to get a loan and the same object, in turn, was later used by an unscrupulous moneylender to pay a debt.
